From the Executive Director

My - what a year 2020 turned out to be! Within these pages you will read about all the ways CROW staff, students and volunteers met the trials of 2020 with gusto! In 2020, our team worked together on "WILD" new fundraisers and "REIMAGINED" a longstanding, traditional one to benefit not only CROW, but our restaurant partners who have supported us for many years. Our team pivoted to make sure our record number of patients -5,618 - received the best care possible and filled those voids left when, for safety reasons, we needed to reduce the number of students in our dorms and volunteers in the hospital and education center. And in 2020, our team focused on each other - making sure everyone remained healthy - physically and mentally. We rallied and thanks to our many longtime supporters, our members, our donors - old and new to our cause, and those who thought about CROW beyond their lifetime, we have remained strong in spite of all 2020 tried to throw at us.

We certainly missed our volunteers, our events, and our friend-raisers. We were deeply saddened by the loss of our founder Shirley Walter. But one thing is certain . . . CROW continues to carry on her mission. On behalf of President Paul Ben-Susan, the Board of Directors and myself, I cannot thank you enough for ensuring CROW's health and stability, both physical and fiscal, during 2020. We are focused on moving forward into 2021 with fortitude, growth, and astuteness to continue saving wildlife through care, education, and collaboration.

2020 Finances in Review

CROW is extremely appreciative of each and every gift received that furthers our work: Saving Wildlife Through Care, Education and Collaboration. It is because of your support we are able to maintain the highest quality of patient care and excellence in education, both of the next generation of wildlife professionals and the public. We strive to improve the relationship with our native and migratory wild neighbors wherever you call home. Patient care, operations, capital improvements, and capacity building were supported by individuals, foundations and corporations alike.

To our amazing Volunteers...

Wow, 2020 was certainly an unprecedented year! In March, we asked you, our amazing, wonderful volunteers to stay home as we formally suspended our volunteer program due to the pandemic. Not only did self isolating hopefully keep you safe, but it also helped ensure the safety and health of our staff and wildlife patients.

Yes, it was a challenging year for our CROW staff (although we think Alison really enjoyed helping out in the hospital!), and we know it was also difficult for you not being at CROW doing what you love. We are so grateful for your sacrifice. Although you were not physically at CROW, we felt your presence and thought about you daily.

We look forward to the day when we can ask our volunteers to return. We thank you for your patience as we continue to navigate the COVID-19 pandemic. Please know YOU are a part of our family and YOU are what makes CROW successful. We are certainly stronger with you actively involved and look forward to the day our volunteer program can return to full function. In the meantime, please stay safe and stay healthy.

YOU!

From the Medical & Research Director

This past year brought a number of challenges, but some unique opportunities as well. Having a viral pandemic that originated in wildlife has focused attention on the One World/One Health concept in a way all our educational lectures never could have done. Wildlife health is an essential component of ecosystem and human health. Towards that end, CROW engaged in some really amazing conservation and collaborative research in 2020. Our partnerships included working with scientists from the Universities of Florida, Georgia, and Tufts; FWC, SCCF, NOAA, the Loggerhead Marinelife Center, and many others.

We also were leaders in some ground-breaking research here at CROW. For example, the use of ultrasound as a means of rapidly assessing emergent patients, particularly avian patients with respiratory disease. This technique, known as TFAST (Thoracic Focused Assessment using Sonography for Trauma), has not been described in birds previously and is proving to be a valuable diagnostic tool.

An important facet of CROW's mission is education and supporting budding scientists as they learn how to create and conduct viable research. This year we worked with graduate students at the Universities of Bristol and Edinburgh as they pursued projects for their master's thesis in wildlife health and conservation. Additionally, our veterinary intern, Dr. Troiano, is investigating the use of blood lactate levels in birds presenting for entanglement injuries or for red tide poisoning as a biomarker for the severity of their injury or disease in order to help form an accurate prognosis for recovery.

From the Staff Veterinarian

As we look back on this past year, we faced many unique challenges here at the hospital.

Due to the COVID-19 pandemic, our beloved volunteers were unable to work alongside us in the clinic for several months. Additionally, student housing capacity was halved for health and safety reasons. Despite these unprecedented changes resulting in fewer helping hands on-site, we rose to the challenge and admitted a record-breaking 5,618 patients in 2020!

One of the creative ways we made this happen was by expanding our foster-care program. We trained several volunteers in the intensive care involved in raising our neonatal patients such as Virginia opossum joeys (over 70% of our opossum patients were orphans!). This allowed our staff and students onsite to focus on the critical care patients – frequent fliers included brown pelicans with red tide poisoning, mourning doves with traumatic injuries, eastern cottontails attacked by cats/dogs, and eastern grey squirrels with sustained head trauma falling from nests.

We had some challenging cases with positives outcomes, including a hit-by-car bobcat that recovered from head trauma and lung contusions, a near-threatened reddish egret that required TWO surgeries and months of care to recover from a complicated wing fracture, and a bald eagle who took to the skies again after almost seven months in care for a severe infection of its feather follicles!

We ended the year with a burst pipe in surgery, resulting in a flood at the hospital. Thankfully, all the patients were fine and as we make repairs over the coming weeks we will take the opportunity to give the inside of the clinic a fresh start and a clean coat of paint. No matter what this next year has in store for us, I know we will continue to achieve great things for wildlife.

Student Programs

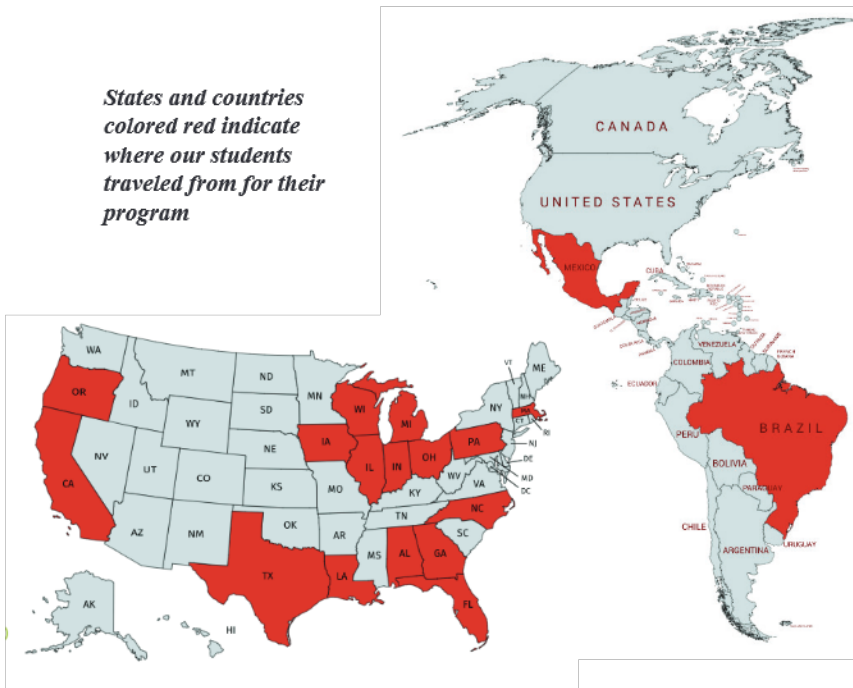

Even with all the cancellations, quarantining, and restrictions, we were fortunate to maintain our student program throughout 2020. We enjoyed 34 new students, including 15 veterinary medicine externs, three veterinary technician externs, five undergraduate externs and nine fellows, who joined us this year to learn about wildlife medicine.

Our 2020 students exceeded expectations in many ways. Restrictions on volunteers allowed on-site led to more working hours and longer days placed on our student's shoulders, yet everyone understood the needs of the patients and worked from open to close with a smile on their face. The drive to learn set these students apart from the rest as we were still able to teach each one about triage, husbandry, blood work, radiology, surgery, diet preparations, wildlife disease, medications, and more.

With almost 19,000 working hours from our CROW students, our hospital was able to continue to admit and treat a record-breaking number of patients this year. With everything 2020 has brought us, we were able to keep the students healthy while they were here for their program by limiting off-site activities and capping our housing at half capacity. We are proud of the dedicated and passionate students we were able to meet and teach this year and look forward to seeing where each student goes after finishing their programs.

Education & Outreach

This year certainly presented challenges, but, on the bright side, it also gave our team the chance to display our resilience and creativity. When the doors of the AWC Visitor Education Center closed in March, our team quickly began to brainstorm ways to expand CROW's reach in ways we've never done before.

Remote programs quickly became commonplace and by Gopher Tortoise Day on April 10, we kicked off the first of our virtual offerings titled "Wildlife Wednesdays". These weekly segments aired on CROW's social media platforms, giving audiences insight into the species that are cared for within the hospital. To date, the series has received over 63,000 views!

A little bird told us teachers are always looking for creative ways to engage their students, especially as they were taking on the challenges of virtual learning. So, our staff found a way to enhance classrooms' curriculum with our "Wildlife Zoom" programs. These interactive sessions provide students with an opportunity to have open dialogue with CROW's staff members and meet one of our animal ambassadors in a virtual setting.

In April, we also launched our eCommerce site featuring more than 40 items for sale including CROW t-shirts, Adopt-A-Species, CROW souvenirs, and online-exclusive merchandise. Within the first week, we were shipping packages across the country to those who wanted to support CROW, but were unable to visit in person due to the pandemic.

As restrictions in Florida were rolled back in June, we reopened the doors to the Visitor Education Center with new mask and social distancing protocols. To help reduce the spread of COVID-19, we suspended our on-site programs such as Wildlife Walk guided hospital tours and Daily Presentations for the remainder of the year. Overall, the pandemic had a major impact to the Visitor Center with visitation dropping by 57% from 2019 and program participation dropping 67%.

As we move forward into 2021, we continue to build on what we started in 2020. Our 2021 Speaker Series presented by LCEC has gone entirely virtual allowing us to reach new participants and speakers from throughout Florida and the United States. We are hopeful we will be able to once again offer our onsite programs soon, but until then we will continue to expand our education efforts online!

In Loving Memory

This past year we said goodbye to CROW's beloved founder Shirley Walter, who passed away from causes unrelated to the ongoing pandemic. Although she is no longer with us, her legacy lives on through the work we do every day for our wild neighbors. When Shirley first rescued a royal tern back in 1968 that had been hit by a car on the causeway but found no pre-existing organization to care for the bird, she took it upon herself to recruit other volunteers including the late Dr. Phyllis Douglass to help treat wildlife in need. At that time, Shirley had no idea the seed she planted with those small actions would one day grow into a state-of-the-art wildlife teaching hospital and research institution contributing to environmental health and conservation medicine on a global scale.

I first met Shirley when I was an extern at CROW eleven years ago; although she lived in Ocala, she came down to visit the clinic once a year and attend Taste of the Islands. I remember fondly the stories she told of her animal rescue days while we were grazing gopher tortoise patients outside (her favorite volunteer activity). She was down to earth, compassionate, yet tough as nails. When it came to her passion of helping animals, there was not a single challenge Shirley would not tackle head on. She valued teaching highly as a part of CROW's mission, and has inspired hundreds of students, volunteers, and staff members over the years. She was my greatest cheerleader when I left CROW to attend veterinary school, saying she always knew I would end up back at CROW someday (like usual, she was right, and I returned to CROW 5 years later). Even though she lived in north Florida later in life, she kept in touch with the CROW team and followed our patient stories on social media.

Shirley had the biggest heart and was a true champion for wildlife. Our friendship is something I will cherish for the rest of my career. I will think of her every time we release a patient back home or see the inspiration on a student's face when they learn something new. Shirley lives on in each person walking through the doors of CROW as we continue to grow the next generation of wildlife health advocates in our community and beyond. As we move forward into the future, I feel her encouraging presence and know she is proud of the work we continue to do. We will miss her more than words can say but know she will never leave our hearts.

Fly free, Shirley.

Support During a Pandemic

As with other nonprofits, CROW's fundraisers were not immune to the effects of the pandemic. It was necessary to eventually cancel Southern Comfort in April and our golf tournament in October to keep everyone safe but also to best utilize our staff and resources. Local artist Myra Roberts came to our rescue with her donated painting of Ozzie and with the support of our friends at the Southwest Florida Eagle Cam, we raised over $15,000 in a memorial raffle for our beloved celebrity patient. In turn, #GivingTuesday, online Facebook support gifts, legacy gifts, and our end of year appeal were met with astounding generosity sustaining us throughout the year and into the next.

Wild About CROW

On a delightful evening in January 2020, guests dressed in their finest animal print attire enjoyed a WILD time at the beautifully decorated Burroughs Home and Gardens on the Caloosahatchee River in Fort Myers. This first off-Island fundraiser and friend-raiser featured CROW's Animal Ambassadors and staff, delicious food and drinks, as well as a lively auction to raise funds and awareness throughout Lee County. Local Celebrity Emcee Rachel Pierce reminded event attendees of CROW's mission during the evening and even contributed one of her original paintings to the auction. Everyone went home with special gifts including a commemorative raccoon fifty cent coin from Edison National Bank/Bank of the Islands, the title sponsors. The pre-COVID event was a WILD success raising over $100,000 to benefit CROW's mission and we look forward to its return in 2022.

Taste of the Islands: Reimagined

Taste of the Islands took on a new look this year as necessitated by COVID. Thank you to all of our sponsors, restaurant partners and diners who came together to support CROW in our longest annual fundraiser with astounding success. Diners enjoyed delicious “tastes” for the entire month of November IN the participating restaurants instead of in the park.

With 31 restaurants, the delectable selections were numerous, and patrons could use their “passports” to track their progress throughout the month, vote for their favorite restaurant and be entered into a drawing to win fabulous prizes donated by local businesses. This year’s fundraiser was designed to put diners into our partner’s establishments to enjoy not only the “tastes” for CROW but also to support our local restaurants suffering from the pandemic shutdowns/restrictions.

Diners who met the “31 restaurants in 30 days” challenge supported CROW while adding to their waistline! Congratulations to Old Captiva House winner of Taste of the Taste and People’s Choice Award winner - MudBugs Cajun Kitchen.

PUBLICATION OF CROW'S ANNUAL REPORT HAS BEEN GENEROUSLY UNDERWRITTEN BY:

Bank of The Islands

NATIONAL BANK

"As the oldest locally owned and managed community bank in Lee County and on the islands, Bank of the Islands/Edison National Bank cares deeply about the wildlife that define the special Southwest Florida environment we call home. The mammals, birds and reptiles sharing our ecosystems are safer because CROW is here to help those injured and at risk from human interactions. CROW's professional staff is uniquely qualified to provide veterinary hospital care for its patients, as well as the educational programming for people to learn how to live in harmony with the beautiful wildlife that surrounds us. Bank of the Islands and Edison National Bank are proud to help convey examples of CROW's good work in this annual report."

— Geoffrey Roepstorff
Chief Executive Officer, Bank of the Islands/Edison National Bank
